P R A C T I C A L M A G I C

BINGO

small spells for ordinary days

✦ HOW MANY CAN YOU CHECK OFF BEFORE NOVEMBER 13? ✦

My reward for five in a row: _____

Decant something into a jar you love	Speak a dream out loud	Take one tiny step toward a dream	Dress as an archetype for a day	Hum for three minutes
Give your money a little ritual	Romanticize an errand	Dance in your kitchen to one full song	Host a pajama night	Release something to a flame
Make your morning coffee a ceremony	Look up	★ FREE SPACE You showed up.	Stir an intention into dinner	Say no to make room for a yes
Tell a woman what you admire about her	Take up more space than usual	Go get lost in the moss	Go outside to meet the moon	Turn a chore into a spell
Write a love note to future you	Leave a little magic for a stranger	Notice three tiny wonders	Sit by moving water and listen	Make a soundtrack for your week

PRACTICALMAGICRETREAT.COM/#RESERVE
@PRACTICALMAGIC_RETREAT

PRACTICAL MAGIC RETREAT
NOVEMBER 13–15 · NORTH GEORGIA

the Etowah River, where we'll gather in November

READY TO BEGIN?

Turn the page for how to cast each square.

SPELL NOTES

how to cast each square

DECANT SOMETHING INTO A JAR YOU LOVE

Rebekah once moved every supplement and powder out of crinkly bags into glass jars, each with its own little gold spoon. Same vitamins, completely different morning. Choose one thing you reach for daily and give it a home you're happy to open.

SPEAK A DREAM OUT LOUD

Tell a friend, your partner, or your dog. A dream kept in your head stays a wish. Give it a voice and it starts taking form. It's how we close Rachel's Take Up Space Sis workshop at the retreat.

TAKE ONE TINY STEP TOWARD A DREAM

Not the whole plan. One move small enough to do today: send the email, look up the class, borrow the book. That's the heart of Rebekah's Dream Mapping workshop. Wishes become real one small step at a time.

DRESS AS AN ARCHETYPE FOR A DAY

Pick one: the Queen, the Muse, the Wild One, the Sage. Choose what she'd wear and how she'd walk into a room, then live your ordinary day as her. Guest facilitator Ashley Clara calls this the art of shapeshifting.

HUM FOR THREE MINUTES

Close your lips and hum any note that feels good. Humming naturally lengthens your exhale, a gentle signal to your nervous system that you're safe. Try it in the car, the shower, or the grocery line.

GIVE YOUR MONEY A LITTLE RITUAL

Light a candle, open your accounts, and look at your money without flinching. Then ask what you want it to be for. Values-based budgeting is just practical magic with a spreadsheet.

ROMANTICIZE AN ERRAND

Pick the most boring task on your list. Give it a soundtrack, an outfit you like, and the long way home. You're not running errands. You're the main character in a quiet, beautiful film.

DANCE IN YOUR KITCHEN TO ONE FULL SONG

Start to finish, no skipping, no audience required. Extra credit if something's simmering on the stove. Joy is its own kind of magic, and it counts.

SPELL NOTES

how to cast each square

HOST A PAJAMA NIGHT

Invite a friend or three. Cozy clothes, good snacks, lights low, phones in a basket. No agenda beyond laughing until it hurts. Our unofficial retreat motto: girls gone mild.

MAKE YOUR MORNING COFFEE A CEREMONY

Before you touch your phone, make your coffee or tea slowly. Choose your favorite mug. Hold it with both hands and take the first sip like it matters. It does.

STIR AN INTENTION INTO DINNER

As you cook, decide what you want this meal to give the people eating it: comfort, courage, rest. Hold that word in mind every time you stir. Nourishing yourself can be a spell too.

TELL A WOMAN WHAT YOU ADMIRE ABOUT HER

Text, call, or say it in person, and be specific. Women rarely hear exactly what makes them wonderful. Thirty seconds of your honesty might carry her whole week.

RELEASE SOMETHING TO A FLAME

Write down one thing you're done carrying. Hold it for a breath, then burn it safely in a candle flame or fire and watch it turn to smoke. We'll do this one together around the fire in November.

LOOK UP

We spend so much of the day looking down. Next time you step outside, stop and look up for one full minute: treetops, clouds, sunlight playing peek-a-boo between the branches. It's the smallest movement, and somehow it shifts everything.

SAY NO TO MAKE ROOM FOR A YES

Turn down one thing you'd only do out of obligation. Then pay attention to what fills the space. Every boundary is also a doorway.

TAKE UP MORE SPACE THAN USUAL

Next time you're sitting or standing, spread out. Uncross your arms, widen your stance, let your shoulders drop. Stay there two minutes and notice what it feels like to stop shrinking.

SPELL NOTES

how to cast each square

GO GET LOST IN THE MOSS

Find the softest patch of moss (or grass, or plain old dirt) and get down there with it. Shoes off if you're feeling rebellious. Press your palms in, lie back, let your grown-up self be a little scandalized. The earth has been holding you this whole time. Let it.

GO OUTSIDE TO MEET THE MOON

Look up tonight's moonrise time where you live and step outside to greet her. Moonrise shifts every day, so the checking is half the ritual. Say hello. Make a wish if you'd like.

TURN A CHORE INTO A SPELL

Sweep out whatever feels stale. Name what you're rinsing away as you wash the dishes. Fold laundry with care for whoever will wear it. Same chore, new purpose.

WRITE A LOVE NOTE TO FUTURE YOU

Write to yourself one year from now. Tell her what you hope for her and what you're proud of today. Seal it, date it, and tuck it somewhere you'll find it later.

LEAVE A LITTLE MAGIC FOR A STRANGER

A kind note tucked into a library book. A flower on a windshield. Quarters taped to a vending machine. Small, anonymous, and just a little mischievous.

NOTICE THREE TINY WONDERS

Walk slowly and go hunting for small marvels: the crunch of leaves underfoot, an ant carrying something ten times its size, light caught in a spiderweb. Name three. Once you start noticing, ordinary days get very interesting.

SIT BY MOVING WATER AND LISTEN

A river, a creek, a fountain, even rain on a window. Sit for ten minutes and just listen. Our retreat home sits right on the Etowah River, so this one's a gimme in November.

MAKE A SOUNDTRACK FOR YOUR WEEK

Build a playlist of songs that feel like the woman you're becoming. Press play Monday morning and let it set the tone for everything after.

✦ FREE SPACE ✦

You showed up for your own life. That counts as magic.

AND IF THIS HAS YOU CRAVING MORE…

COME SPEND A WHOLE WEEKEND IN IT.

Three days of small spells, real conversation, and women who get it, at a riverside cabin in the North Georgia mountains.

WHEN	WHERE	WHO
November 13–15, 2026	On the Etowah River near Dahlonega, GA	Just 12 women, plus your hosts

✦ THREE INCREDIBLE WORKSHOPS ✦

Take Up Space Sis with Rachel Blum

Dream Mapping with Rebekah Baldwin

Archetypal Embodiment with Ashley Clara

Plus home-cooked meals, a hot tub, a barrel sauna, and a fire pit by the river.

Only a few spots remain.

RESERVE YOUR SPOT

PRACTICALMAGICRETREAT.COM/#RESERVE

With love, Rachel & Rebekah

PRACTICALMAGICRETREAT@GMAIL.COM
@PRACTICALMAGIC_RETREAT